

$4,000 CAMERA THEFTS IN FULTON STREET SHOP

Most Daring of Recent Downtown
Raids, Declares Detective.

Twenty-five cameras, valued at $4,000, were the estimate given the police today to a lost camera in a special raid on the stock of the New York Camera Exchange, No. 109 Fulton street, some time between Saturday evening at 8 o'clock and 7 o'clock this morning, when John H. Andrew, proprietor of the shop, opened for business.

Flour and Wall cases on the left side of the store, concealed from the street by a stairway, were rifled of their stocks, and a gaping hole in the stairs, which lead to two upper floors from an outside entrance, showed the manner in which the burglars gained entrance to the place and removed what must have been a half wagon-load of loot.

"No job in the downtown section in recent years equals this for daring," was the opinion of Detective Charles Curran, following an investigation of the premises.

JOHN WANAMAKER PIANOS AND PLAYER-PIANOS

PLAYER-PIANOS Have Come to Stay

This Is An Interesting Fact

THE originators of the first player-pianos were the inventors of the now famous ANGELUS, which continues to hold the first place, in spite of all comers.

The finest types of the highest class of pianos—the

Schomacker and the Celebrated Knabe

—have installed the ANGELUS, but for a long time there has been a great demand for a good player of less expensive construction, and now, after long persuasion, the ANGELUS makers have consented to construct in the ANGELUS musical shops

two new player-actions

which, after many trials, have met our experts' requirements and have been accepted and adopted by us, and are now offered to the public for the first time.

We, Therefore, Announce

The New Lindeman-Angelus at.....$550

The New Lindeman Player-piano with the

Wilcox & White Player-action at.....$450

The New Lindeman Player-piano with the White player-action at.....$395

The Status of the ANGELUS player-piano mechanism is so well set in the minds of the people as being the best player-piano mechanism made today that nothing we could add would enhance its value in the opinion of the player-piano-buying public. We have sold thousands of the Lindeman Angelus, and they are giving splendid service

Now we announce that we are placing on sale two other types of player-piano actions (made by the makers of the ANGELUS) in the Lindeman & Sons piano—one, the Lindeman & Sons Player-piano with the White player-action at $395;

the other, the Lindeman & Sons Player-piano with the Wilcox & White player-action at $450.

This offers a choice of a trio of player-pianos that we feel confident that if everybody knew just how much superior each one at its price was to anything else, at anywhere near these prices, that is offered elsewhere, the sales of these would be so large that there would be very few buyers of any other type or make of player-piano.

The Wilcox & White Co., Meriden, Connecticut, makers of the wonderful ANGELUS, have recently developed the two other types of actions that enable us to offer them in the Lindeman & Sons piano at a lesser price than the Lindeman Angelus.

The fact that the player-actions are made in the same factory that produced and makes the ANGELUS, is a positive guaranty of their superiority over all others at the price. This makes it now possible for those desiring to purchase player-pianos at or near the price of $395 or $450, to secure a piano with three-quarters of a century of worthy history back of it, combined with a player-action made by the Wilcox &

White Co., player-piano-action manufacturers who are up to the minute, keeping pace with progress and improvement in this field, and who years ago left behind them experimental uncertainty, which meant trusting to Providence that their product might stand the test of competition and use to prove its worthiness.

It was a serious problem

with the great house of Wilcox & White Co.—and they are great in the player-piano mechanism field—whether to place on the market two other types of actions to meet a very large demand for a player at a lower price than the Lindeman-Angelus is sold—$550—when their position at the top is so secure as makers of the wonderful ANGELUS.

However, they finally reasoned that there was a very large number of people who could not afford, or who did not care to pay, more money than $395 or $450 for a player-piano, and that they were just as much entitled

as those who could afford to pay more money, to secure a player-piano with the player mechanism made by a house of large experience, that knew how to make player-pianos having been pioneers in this work.

Therefore, we are now enabled to place on sale what we are pleased to call

"The ANGELUS TRIO"

—the Lindeman player-piano, White action, $395;
—the Lindeman player-piano, Wilcox & White action, $450;
—and the Lindeman-Angelus, $550.

TERMS

Any one of "The ANGELUS TRIO" may be secured for a very small down payment and a small monthly payment so reasonable that the terms are within the reach of any one with even a very limited income.

The most illusive, yet irresistible call that fall is the one to "buy," "buy," which comes from all directions. Dresses, hats, coats, shoes, bags, and all other things that women delights in are beckoning from every shop window. Not only do they attract the woman who really needs them, but so many of these things in such attractive array have the peculiar psychological effect of making all women feel that they need them desperately, whether they do or not. Consequently, there is a great deal of extravagant and unwise purchasing. A woman should buy nothing at this time except what she expects to put on and wear at every available moment. Then when November comes and the fashions are more settled, and one's plans and requirements for the winter are known, the wardrobe can be selected with sound, good judgment and economy.

With the opening of school so near at hand many young girls are anxious for a practical, simple, and easy to make, so the design I am showing will be especially appealing. Any light weight woolen fabric, or silk or satin is suitable. The front view suggests what might be tan wool poplin trimmed with dull blue broadcloth, satin or velvet. The waist and sleeve are in one, the former gathered into a very wide girde which is extended into straps in front and a collar in back. The effect is unique, and the more attractive when the girde is left to gap in front, with brass button links to hold it at the belt line. The merest suggestion of a waistcoat is given by the tiny pocket from which the modish fob is dropped. Brass buttons trimming the band of tan on the sleeves permit flares of the blue above and below. Other circular bands, turned upside down just to be contrary, achieve considerable distinction for the skirt. In place of the blue fabric suggested, brown silk

The May Manton Fashions

THIS is a frock that can be made with bloomers if it is made of an every-day material for school wear, or without the bloomers if it is made of a more dressy one. For school wear, galatea, linen, chambray and the like are good materials. A little later, the same model will be pretty for chills and perhaps for serge in the case of the older girls. If it is to be used for dressy occasions it could be copied in white linen or in rose colored linen, either with white trimmings, or with trimmings of the same scalloped with white. For the girls of eight and ten it could be made of pretty taffeta, perhaps a plaid taffeta with the trimmings of plain and with the panel at the front cut on the bias. It has a number of possibilities in spite of its extreme simplicity. It is a very easy little dress to make, and for that reason it will make an especial appeal to the home dressmaker. Body and skirt portions are cut in one, so that there are the fewest possible seams. In these days we use pockets for all kinds of dresses, but these can be omitted if for any reason they are not desirable. The bloomers are circular ones closed at the sides, which means that they are snugly fitted to the waist and over the hips, but comfortably full at the knees. Besides serving for the bloomers, that match the dress, the model is a good one for those made of serge or of silk for every-day wear. Most mothers find bloomers more satisfactory than petticoats for their daughters, and this model is the best that can be offered. For the eight-year-old size will be needed 4 yards of material 27 inches wide, 3 yards 36 or 38 inches wide, 44 for the dress, with 3 yards 44 for the trimmings for the trimmings and 2 yards 27, 34 yards 28 or 44 for the bloomers. The No. 9210 is cut in sizes from 4 to 10 years of age.

LAWYER'S DUAL LIFE BARED TO HIS WIDOW AFTER FATAL WRECK

Senator Clapp's Former Partner Lived Under Alias for Years, Suit Shows.

REDLAND, Cal., Sept. 17.—A statement that her late husband, Francis J. Everett, "apparently was James F. Clapp," who disappeared twenty-six years ago from his home in Fergus Falls, Minn., was made here last night by Mrs. Elizabeth Everett.

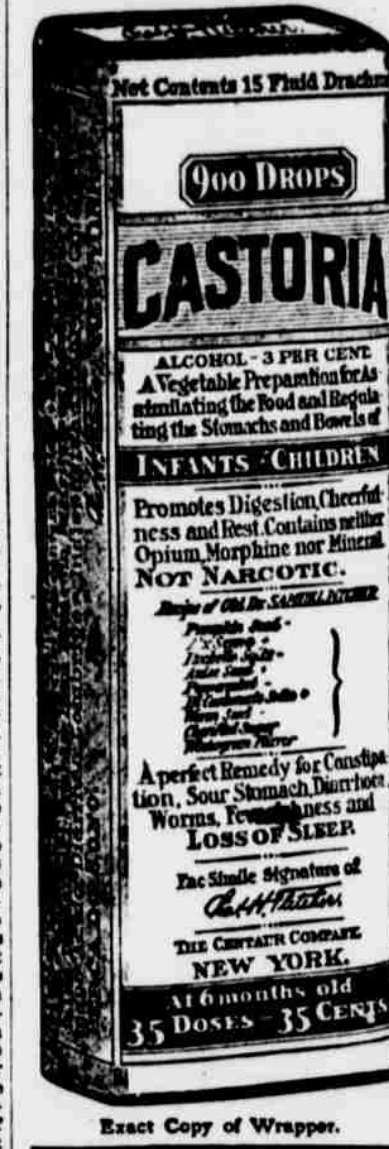

last night by Mrs. Elizabeth Everett. Clapp was at one time law partner of United States Senator Clapp of Minnesota. Mrs. Everett's statement followed the filing yesterday in the Superior Court at San Bernardino, Cal., of an answer to her suit against the Standard Accident Insurance Company to collect $15,000 insurance. The company alleged Everett was Clapp and claimed Mrs. Everett was not entitled to any benefits under the policy "for the reason that Everett as Clapp left a wife in Fergus Falls, Minn., and therefore could not legally marry in San Bernardino County." Everett was killed in an automobile accident at Redland, Cal., a year ago. Mrs. Everett was married to "Everett" here in June, 1890. She said she never knew his past during their wedded life, but that after his death she learned from relatives his name was Clapp.

A Great Responsibility.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear tomorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared: could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for, the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Extracts from Letters by Grateful
Parents to Chas. H. Fletcher.

G. J. English, of Springfield, Mass., says: "It was your Castoria that cured my child."
Mrs. Mary McGinnis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "We have given our baby your Castoria ever since she was born, and we recommend it to all mothers."
N. E. Calmes, of Marion, Ky., says: "You have the best medicine in the world, as I have given your Castoria to my babies from first to last."
Mrs. Albert Ugusky, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., says: "As I have had your Castoria in use for nearly three years, I am pleased to say it is just as represented. My children are both well and happy—thanks to Castoria."
R. P. Stockton, of New Orleans, La., says: "We began giving your Castoria to our baby when he was eight days old and have kept it up ever since, never having had to give any other medicine."
Mrs. Dolph Hornbuckle, of Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "We commenced giving your Castoria to our baby when she was four weeks old. She is now seven months and weighs 19 pounds. Everyone remarks 'What a healthy looking baby.' We give Castoria credit for it."
